The Centers for Disease Control is regularly updating information on the H1N1 flu virus on its website. The website includes public health advice and tips for staying healthy. The CDC is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.