WASHINGTON- The University of Montevallo will benefit from $400,000 in federally appropriated funds thanks to Congressman Spencer Bachus. The funding is needed to purchase scientific monitoring and testing equipment that will be used to conduct research on the Ebenezer Swamp in Montevallo.

"The research that students and faculty from the University of Montevallo will be conducting due to the addition of this equipment is vital to the advancement of wetland studies in this region. I am pleased to have been of assistance in making this advancement in science and education possible", said Congressman Bachus.