WASHINGTON (February 1, 2010) - Congressman Spencer Bachus (AL-6) issued the following statement today on President Obama's budget proposal for Fiscal Year 2011.

"The proposal to spend almost $4 trillion is hardly a plan to get spending under control. The American people simply cannot afford a second straight budget that spends too much, taxes too much, and borrows too much. While the President talked about fiscal discipline over the weekend, he has proposed the largest budget in history. We need to go through the budget line by line, keeping the interest of taxpayers first."
