

WASHINGTON (February 15) – Congressman Spencer Bachus (AL-6) today discussed the need to hold federal bureaucracies accountable for their actions during an oversight hearing in the House Financial Services Committee.

Bachus, who is Chairman of the Committee, discussed issues of accountability relating to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the new Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

To view video excerpts of Congressman Bachus' statement, click here.